Understanding your challenges

Whether you are new to the reinsurance and insurance market or an established player, you will appreciate the benefit of having high levels of independent assurance that your business meets the industry’s stringent standards. Expanding your business - whether through organic growth, M&A, new product development or by entering new markets - puts fresh strain on your operations:

- You find you are managing increasing numbers of appointed representatives or intermediaries that may have an impact on managing your regulatory risk or market reputation

- The complexity of your portfolio means you need a fresh approach to risk management, internal controls and the governance process.
